

Saxdor Yachts Announces Change in Leadership

Saxdor Yachts announces a leadership transition following a mutual agreement with Erna Rusi to part ways with the company.

Saxdor extends its sincere gratitude to Erna for her leadership, commitment and dedication over the past five years. Under her guidance, the company has grown from an ambitious young shipyard into the fastest-growing brand in the marine industry, significantly expanding its production capacity, establishing a strong global presence and laying the foundations for continued success.

As Saxdor continues to evolve and prepare for its next phase of growth, the company is identifying new CEO to lead its future development. Eric Lindquist, Chief Growth Officer of Malibu Boats, Inc., will serve as interim CEO.

He commented: “We would like to thank Erna for everything she has contributed to Saxdor over the past five years. The growth and momentum the company has achieved are a testament to the strength of the team and the vision built together.

As we look ahead, our priority is to find the right leader to guide Saxdor into its next chapter. We are committed to preserving Saxdor's autonomy and ensuring that it continues to operate and grow as a standalone global brand, with its own distinct identity, ambitions, and close relationships with its partners and customers. We are excited about the opportunities ahead and confident in Saxdor's continued potential."

Saxdor remains firmly focused on driving innovation in the sector, international expansion, and strengthening its global dealer network, building on the strong foundations established over the past few years.
